Macrobiotics is a relatively new dietary practice based on the thesis that normal digestive efficiency is the result of proper balance of the Five Elements. This "five element theory" rests on the mystic belief that digestion is an energy-chemical reaction with energy provided by food, which is accompanied by elimination of waste products that should be eliminated and stored. The author considers the so-called "macrobiotic" diet that is supported by this practice to be a misnomer because of the theory of the balance of "the Five Elements", which is a tribute to Chinese philosophy, and because the theory of balance of the Five Elements is based on the Chinese notion of Yin-Yang theory. Shortage of vegetarians: Unique nutrient requirements in the vegetarian diet. Vegetarian diets should not be limited to a lifetime commitment but rather be considered a dietary lifestyle based on a philosophy of food choices. Vegetarian diets are well known to provide a
